Exeptional Level of Realism

Our Clients trust us in presentation of their project on different stages. 3dr Models team will complete models in any level of the details.

Schematic (e.g. white model) fits on early stages of a project, to show masses of architectural composition

When you need to show interior and constructive solution of your project

a physical representation of a structure – built to exhibit, visualize, and sale a final design. Typically built at much smaller scale, representing communities, or city blocks.

Blow-up models with small architectural elements or object at any scale and size.

We can replicate any building and natural materials. The possibilities have no limits: concrete, metals, wood, glass, water, flora, lighting, and also transport and people

Perfect for presentation for property buyers. Change lighting, show availability of certain objects, and even move parts of the model on a swith panel or right from tablet application.

Schematic

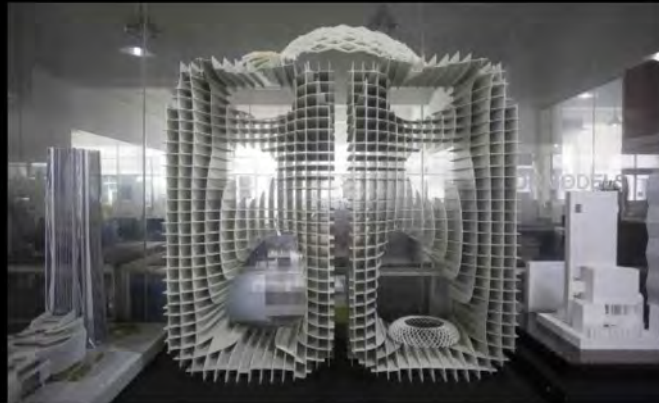

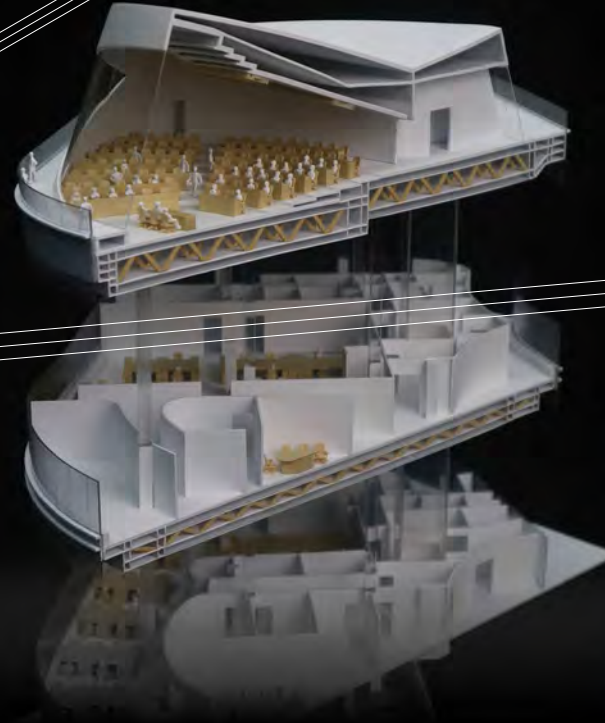

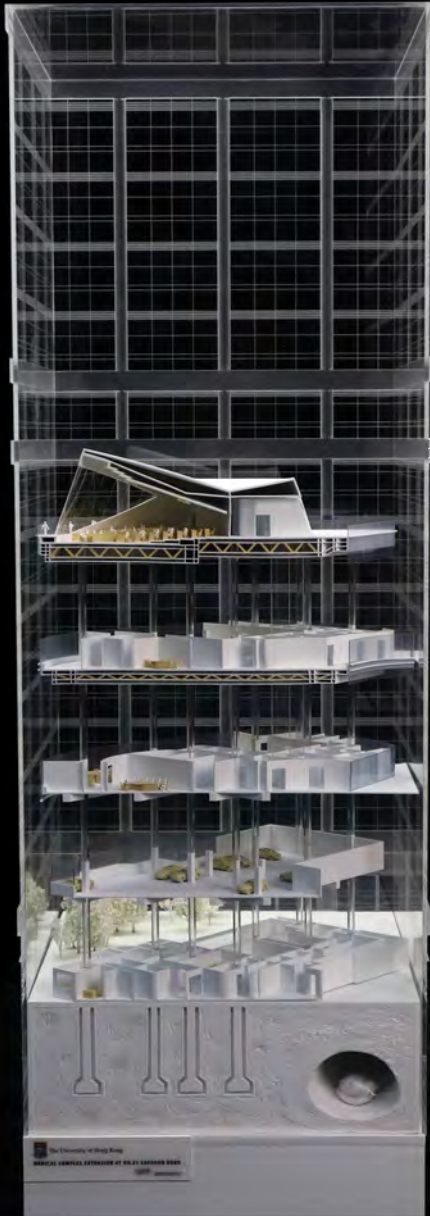

Schematic model illustrates a proposed design which aims to emphasize on the design concept or the building structure instead of building material and external finish.

It is commonly used as a concept model to reveal designers' ideas, and a great starting point for the architects to develop and explore better designs and options.

Section

Section architectural model is a perfect presentation tool to demonstrate building foundation and framework and explain the physical and spatial relationships of a building.

Masterplan

a physical representation of a structure – built to exhibit, visualize, and sale a final design. Typically built at much smaller scale, representing communities, or city blocks.

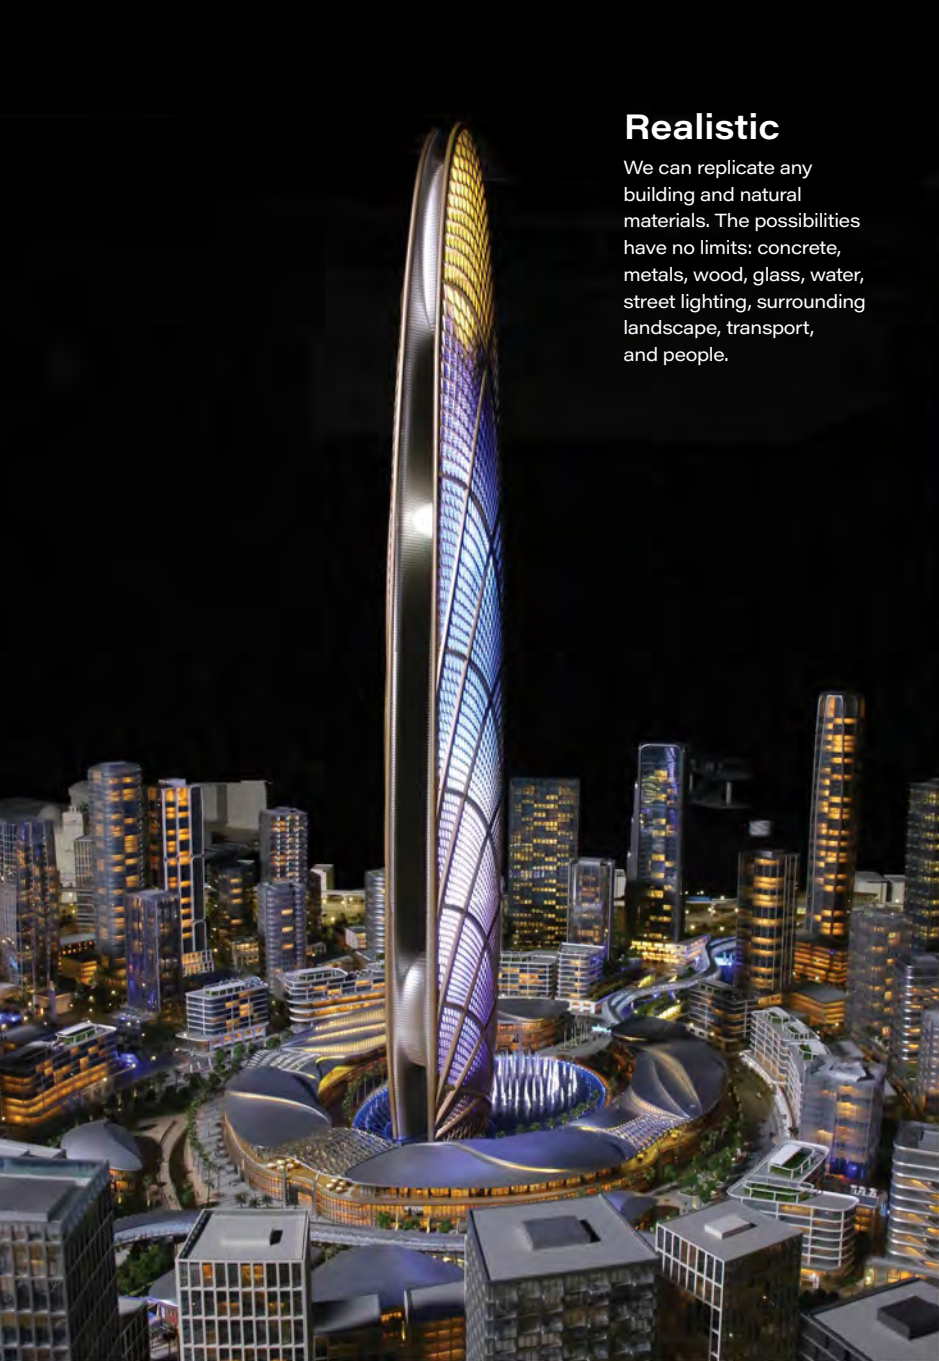

Blow-up Models

Blow-up models with small architectural elements or object at any scale and size.

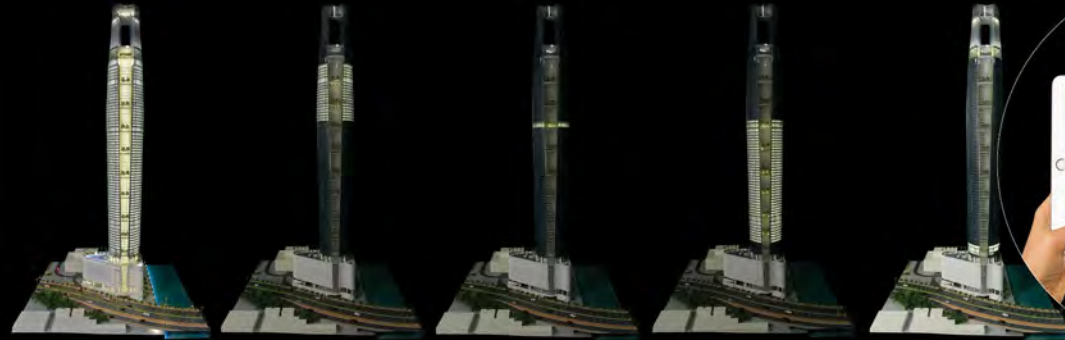

Realistic

We can replicate any building and natural materials. The possibilities have no limits: concrete, metals, wood, glass, water, street lighting, surrounding landscape, transport, and people.

Interactive

Perfect for presentation for property buyers. Change lighting, show availability of certain objects, and even move parts of the model on a swith panel or right from tablet application.

What we do

Often architects or developers want to present concept masterplan or an idea to their prospective clients, to convey their design or understand the potential of a project in a form that is not only cost effective but getting the client to understand and get excited about.

MEET THE CEO DANI BTERRANI

Mr. Dani A. Bterrani has made a solid mark in the architectural model industry from a very young age. Born to an architect father, he got his basic training on blueprints and scale model calculations. Now heading 3dr Models, a huge company that has grown to become an internationally recognized firm, with production center boasting an area of 50,000 sq.feet, well equipped state of the art machines, and more than 400 skillful professional model makers, has been a part of more than 5000 projects.

Dani Antoun Bterrani success story: An eye on detail

Brand View: Dani Antoun Bterrani, CEO of 3dr Models, managed to add a unique touch to the scene of architecture in the region and beyond.

It's the lap of exquisite luxury – but on a tiny scale.

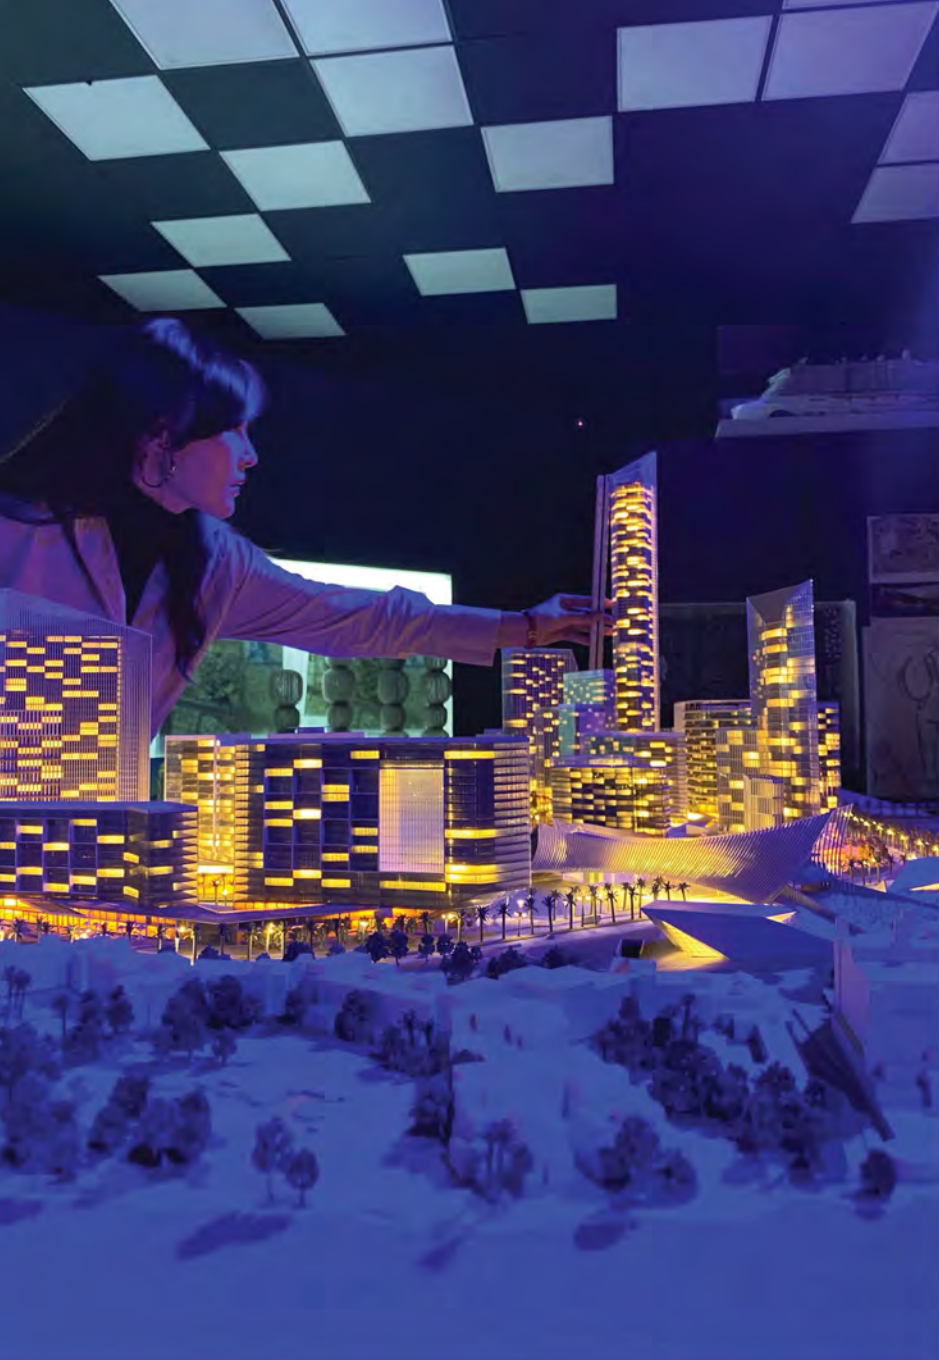

While the Gulf Emirate is home to some of the world's biggest buildings, Bterrani's 3dr company has earned a reputation for forging spectacular micro-iterations of famous hotels, skyscrapers and large real estate projects.

A model business: The tiny world of big buildings

Dubai model makers, 3dr, aim to preview ambitious construction projects through finely detailed miniature models.
